

Timberlake Historic House (circa 1803) Photography by Ron Franklin Studios

Timberlake Historic House for weddings, receptions, rehearsal dinners, parties,
on-site photo shoots, and historic tours.

Huge oaks encapsulate this picturesque home located less than twenty minutes north of Raleigh, North Carolina on Highway 401.

This beautiful house offers convenience and a magical backdrop for your wedding or event. Whether you visit for business or pleasure, your experience at Timberlake promises to provide a relaxing, memorable step back in time.

Georgian-Federal in character, Timberlake has developed in several stages, the original portion built ca. 1803 by Lark Fox. Timberlake exhibits decorative Flemish bond chimneys and a grand Neoclassical-style portico. It is one of a group of large plantation houses of late eighteenth and early nineteenth century construction that have survived in Franklin County.

Today the property is on the National Register of Historic Places and is now opening its doors for weddings and events. The new owners, Joe and Sonja Webb (high school sweethearts originally from Franklin County) recently married at Timberlake. They would like to offer guest an old colonial atmosphere where elegance and simplicity meet southern charm.
